joy are or can be strong and vibrant Drawing on the life affirming ideals of renowned education philosopher and school founder Daisaku Ikeda Hope and Joy in Education will reenergize educational research theory and practice Featuring contributions from such luminaries as Theodora Berry Cynthia Dillard Walter Gershon Francyne Huckaby Johnny Lupinacci and Anita Patterson this book reminds readers that the classroom is still a magical space brimming with the brilliant and creative energy of young people This is a necessary text at a necessary time if we are to revitalize hope in the promise of education From the Foreword by Cynthia B Dillard University of Georgia A beacon of light toward desirable collective futures in a world of increasing complexity uncertainty and vulnerability Ming Fang He Georgia Southern University These essays are just what we need in these turbulent uncertain times a thoughtful focus on hope and joy as the path to educating for a more just equitable relational and peaceful state of being Denise Taliaferro Baszile Miami University This insightful book urges educators to center hope and joy in our work not by turning away from the despair of the moment but by fostering dialogue seeking connection and always remembering that the true aim of education for teachers and students alike is to become more fully human Gregory Michie Chicago public school teacher Connecting Curriculum with Context

Rupen Das, 2015-10-14 Assessment of the impact of theological education has always been a challenge In a pluralistic world where graduates are ministering in greatly varying contexts and cultures theological education has to be context sensitive and relevant It is no longer enough to ensure that students have mastered core theological concepts and truths have biblical knowledge and some basic ministry skills The impact of a theological institution is measured by the effectiveness of their graduates in their specific ministry contexts Therefore the theological curriculum has to be connected with the contexts of the graduates Theological institutions need to be clear as to what they hope to accomplish and this will determine the model of theological training that they use This book explores various models of theological education as well as identifying steps in the logical sequence of connecting curriculum with context The Curriculum: Context, Design and Development:

Readings, 1971 The Curriculum Robert E. Bell, Open University. Curriculum: Context, Design and Development Course Team, 1971 Science Education in Context Richard K. Coll, Neil Taylor, 2008 This book presents an international perspective of the influence of educational context on science education The focus is on the interactions between curriculum development and implementation particularly in non Western and non English speaking contexts i e outside the UK USA Australia NZ etc An important and distinguishing feature of the book is that it draws upon the experiences and research from local experts from an extremely diverse cohort across the world 26 countries in total The book addresses topics such as curriculum development research or evaluation of an implemented curriculum discussion of pressures driving curriculum reform or implementation of new curricula e g technology or environmental education the influence of political cultural societal or religious mores on education governmental or ministerial drives for curriculum reform economic or other pressures driving curriculum reform the influence of external assessment regimes on curriculum and so on Shaping the College Curriculum Lisa R. Lattuca, Joan S. Stark, 2009-08-17 Shaping the College Curriculum focuses on curriculum development as an important decision making process in colleges and universities The authors define curriculum as an academic plan developed in a historical social and political context They identify eight curricular elements that are addressed intentionally or unintentionally in developing all college courses and programs By exploring the interaction of these elements in context they use the academic plan model to clarify the processes of course and program planning enabling instructors and administrators to ask crucial questions about improving teaching and optimizing student learning This revised edition continues to stress research based educational practices The new edition consolidates and focuses discussion of institutional and sociocultural factors that influence curricular decisions All chapters have been updated with recent research findings relevant to curriculum leadership accreditation assessment and the influence of academic fields while two new chapters focus directly on learning research and its implications for instructional practice A new chapter drawn from research on organizational change provides practical guidance to assist faculty members and administrators who are engaged in extensive program improvements Streamlined yet still comprehensive and detailed this revised volume will continue to serve as an invaluable resource for individuals and groups whose work includes planning designing delivering evaluating and studying curricula in higher education This is an extraordinary book that offers not a particular curriculum or structure but a comprehensive approach for thinking about the curriculum ensuring that important considerations are not overlooked in its revision or development and increasing the likelihood that students will learn and develop in ways institutions hope they will The book brings coherence and intention to what is typically an unstructured haphazard and only partially rational process guided more by beliefs than by empirically grounded substantive information Lattuca and Stark present their material in ways that are accessible and applicable across planning levels course program department and institution local settings and academic disciplines It s an admirable and informative marriage of scholarship and practice and an insightful guide to both Anyone who cares seriously about how we can make our colleges and universities more educationally effective should read this book Patrick T Terenzini distinguished professor and senior scientist Center for the Study of Higher Education The Pennsylvania State University
