Student Advantage Guide to the Best 310 Colleges 1997 Tom Meltzer, John

Katzman, Edward T. Custard, 1996-07-30 When it first appeared USA Today called this book the guide that doesn t follow a textbook approach to college life The Best 310 Colleges is based on The Princeton Review s student surveys the largest campus surveys in the nation More than 59 000 students answer questions on everything from academics to campus life

Topics include the quality of teaching dorms and dining hall fare campus politics left or right and conservative or liberal whether the student body is diverse or homogeneous tolerant or intolerant of race class relations and of gay students and high or low in its use of beer liquor and marijuana In fact this book has caused schools across the country to change their food campuses and drinking policies Also included is information concerning admission and financial aid policies student body demographics average recentered SAT scores and What s Hot What s Not as well as the Counselor O Matic an easy to use if highly unscientific guide to your chances of getting into each of the top 310 colleges by calculating your desirability rating and comparing it to each school's selectivity rating. Here's a sampling of what students have to say. This school is filled with wealthy, well-dressed egomaniacs who are about as socially conscious as Marie Antoinette. I'm premed and there's no place I would rather be. The academics are a killer, no joke, but for those few who survive the world is their oyster. If you're not Caucasian, the adjustment here is tremendous. Since this is a Jesuit institution, not all viewpoints get expressed, particularly liberal ones about gays and premarital sex. You have to be smart about where you go at night. The food here is really bad; it's either bland or sickening. You're lucky if they don't screw up the bread. Socially, the surrounding area is so dead that the Denny's closes at night. Girls over 5'8" watch out for some reason; guys here have munchkin blood in them or something.

Illinois Community Colleges ... Biennial Report, 2007      Public Risk Perception in Public Health Policies

Ibrahim A. Elshaer, Abdalwali Lutfi, Adi Mohammad Alsyouf, Mahmaod I. Alrawad, Kingston Rajiah, Aidi Ahmi, 2025-10-14. Public risk perception is a critical factor in determining how policymakers and other decision makers respond to potential risks. If the public perceives a particular activity or technology as being high risk, policymakers may be more likely to regulate or ban it, even if expert assessments suggest that the risks are relatively low. This can have important economic and social implications as it may limit innovation and restrict people's choices. Public risk perception can influence the adoption of new technologies and public health interventions. For example, if people perceive a new vaccine or medical treatment as being risky or unsafe, they may be less likely to use it, even if scientific evidence suggests that it is effective and safe. This can undermine efforts to improve public health and prevent the spread of diseases. In order to address these issues, it is essential to understand how the public perceives different types of risks. By identifying the factors that shape public risk perceptions and devising methods to evaluate public risk perception, policymakers and other stakeholders can develop more effective risk communication strategies and risk management plans. This may involve engaging with the public to address their concerns, providing clear and transparent information about risks and benefits, and building trust and confidence in new technologies and interventions. Ultimately, by taking into account the perspectives and concerns of the public, decision makers can make more informed and responsible choices about managing risks and promoting public welfare.

Higher Education at Risk Sandra Featherman,2023-07-03 Sandra Featherman believes that colleges are in denial about the severity of the threats to the current model of higher education Based on her own experience as a president as a trustee and as a board member who has worked in private and public universities and on interviews with the presidents of major institutions she offers both a trenchant analysis of those threats and clear prescriptions about the painful but necessary decisions that colleges need to make to ensure they remain viable accessible and affordable and deliver a high quality education Sandra Featherman considers higher education to be at a game changing moment When markets don t function well as is the case with today s college marketplace with offerings that cost too much and return too little it opens the door to new types of suppliers who offer new ways of providing what students are looking for particularly the increasing cohort of mature working students In the face of new competitors for profit education companies technology start ups and foreign universities vying for international students trustees and senior level administrators are generally stuck in a traditional ethos and with decision making processes unsuited to these times They know what used to work and find it easier to follow old ways than to make the difficult transition to new ways of delivering education She lays out a strategy that emphasizes the centrality of students and how to provide them with the most effective learning environment that is clear eyed about focusing on the core missions and abandoning practices that constrain or impede them and that requires constant self monitoring to learn from and act upon what works She offers a blueprint for redesigning institutions for paring away what is unnecessary and cost ineffective and for adopting the best technologies all in the service of developing meaningful degree programs at an affordable price and widening access for under represented groups She ranges over the implications of budget decisions accreditation and MOOCs addresses government regulation and tuition costs presents promising new models and concludes with 11 key recommendations that should be heeded by all higher education administrators and trustees
