Creating Autoethnographies:

Creating Autoethnographies Tessa Muncey, 2010-03-25 Creating Autoethnographies is an introduction to autoethnography a form of autobiographical personal narrative that explores the writer's experience of life. The first ever practical text on this increasingly popular research method it provides a background and considers some of the criticisms of the approach. It is suitable for all social science students both at postgraduate and also upper level undergraduate stage. The book is structured to mirror the process of writing about experience from establishing an idea through to the process of writing and the development of creative writing skills and provides detailed worked examples of the whole process. The final two chapters are devoted to exploring two cases in which readers can see the principles discussed in action. There are also a wide range of case studies drawn from a wide a range of social science disciplines and exercises throughout the text. In the book Tessa Muncey identifies a number of trends in social science research such as the increasing focus on the individual and giving a voice to service users that are resulting in an increase of interest in narrative research. Creating Autoethnographies is a timely contribution to the field. Tessa Muncey is one of the leading names in this field and is the annual organiser and chair of the Mixed Methods Conference. Creating Autoethnographies Tessa Muncey, 2010-04-14 The first ever practical text on this increasingly popular research method it provides a background and considers some of the criticisms of the approach. A key work for researchers and students in Applied Linguistics and Language Education it addresses fundamental aspects of research methodology and explores substantive issues relating to individual dimensions of multilingualism. Choi shows convincingly how the learning of a language is inseparable from one's constant searching for a voice, a place and a self in this world demonstrating the importance of interrogating what lies behind everyday life events and interactions, the political and ethical implications of the utterances, thoughts, actions and stories of the self and others. Themes of authenticity, illegitimacy, power relations, perceptions of self/other, cultural discourses and practices and related issues in multilingual identity development surface in the multi-modal narratives. Chapters on methodology woven through the book focus on the process of knowledge production, approaches to writing narratives, the messiness of research writing practices and the inseparability of writing and research. Music Autoethnographies Brydie-Leigh Bartleet, Carolyn Ellis, 2009

Explores an intersection of autoethnographic approaches with studies of music Crafting Autoethnography Jackie Goode, Karen Lumsden, Jan Bradford, 2023-05-11 This collection explores how autoethnography is made Contributors from sociology education counselling the visual arts textiles drama music and museum curation uncover and reflect on the processes and practices they engage in as they craft their autoethnographic artefacts Each chapter explores a different material or media together creating a rich and stimulating set of demonstrations with the focus firmly on the practical accomplishment of texts artefacts Theoretically this book seeks to rectify the hierarchical separation of art and craft and of intellectual and practical cultural production by collapsing distinctions between knowing and making In relation to connections between personal experience and wider social and cultural phenomena contributors address a variety of topics such as social class family relationships and intergenerational transmission loss longing and grief the neoliberal university gender sexuality colonialism race ism national identity digital identities indigenous ways of knowing making and how these are storied curated and presented to the public and our relationship with the natural world Contributors also offer insights into how the crafting space is itself one of intellectual inquiry debate and reflection This is a core text for readers from both traditional and practice based disciplines undertaking qualitative research methods autoethnographic inquiry courses as well as community based practitioners and students Readers interested in creative practice practitioner research and arts based research in the social sciences and humanities will also benefit from this book Autoethnography as Method Heewon Chang, 2016-07 This methods book will guide the reader through the process of conducting and producing an autoethnographic study through the understanding of self other and culture Readers will be encouraged to follow hands on though not prescriptive steps in data collection analysis and interpretation with self reflective prewriting exercises and self narrative writing exercises to produce their own autoethnographic work Chang offers a variety of techniques for gathering data on the self from diaries to culture grams to interviews with others and shows how to transform this information into a study that looks for the connection with others present in a diverse world She shows how the autoethnographic process promotes self reflection understanding of multicultural others qualitative inquiry and narrative writing Samples of published autoethnographies provide exemplars for the novice researcher to follow Ethnologia Europaea Journal of European Ethnology Tom O'Dell, Robert Willim, 2012-03-26 Ethnography has become something of a buzzword in recent years It is talked about and invoked in disciplines ranging from anthropology and ethnology to literature history business administration and design studies Textbooks that teach ethnography tend to imbue students with the impression that ethnography is a mode of systematic investigation by which the researcher gets closer to the realities of people s everyday lives But how straightforward are these processes in reality As ethnography spreads into new folds of research both within and without the academy the contributions in this volume demonstrate the manner in which field methods are adjusting transforming or taking new forms altogether If textbooks might lead students to believe that observations and interviews are the grounds upon which good ethnography can regularly be produced the authors in this volume take as their point of departure the realisation that ethnography is being used in a multitude of different contexts which forces them and us as readers to question the regularities and irregularities of their own work Searching for Mother Diane L. Maldonado,2004

Coming to Shore Marie Mauzé,Michael Eugene Harkin,Sergei Kan,2004 The Northwest Coast of North America was home to dozens of Native peoples at the time of its first contact with Europeans The rich artistic ceremonial and oral traditions of these peoples and their preservation of cultural practices have made this region especially attractive for anthropological study Coming to Shore provides a historical overview of the ethnology and ethnohistory of this region with special attention given to contemporary theoretically informed studies of communities and issues The first book to explore the role of the Northwest Coast in three distinct national traditions of anthropology American Canadian and French Coming to Shore gives particular consideration to the importance of Claude Lévi Strauss and structuralism as well as more recent social theory in the context of Northwest Coast anthropology In addition contributors explore the blurring boundaries between theoretical and applied anthropology as well as contemporary issues such as land claims criminal justice environmentalism economic development and museum display The contribution of Frederica de Laguna provides a historical background to the enterprise of Northwest Coast anthropology as do the contributions of Claude Lévi Strauss and Marie Mauz Handbook of Autoethnography Tony E. Chang,Wendy A. Bilgen,2022-03-30 A 2023 SPE Outstanding Book Award Winner Can transformation be the primary goal of autoethnographic research In this book the authors present a compelling case that this is indeed possible Since autoethnography first appeared as a nascent approach to social inquiry much has been written about it as a useful addition to the field of qualitative research methods Over the years its usage has been extended across various disciplines including the humanities human services social sciences leadership studies engineering education counseling and even medical education Notably the primary function of autoethnography to advance our understanding around sociocultural phenomena has been increasingly paired with a parallel function of the many ways in which this research method can also contribute to practice However though its contribution to scholarship is well documented less has been written about its practical usage as the focal point of inquiry Yet there is growing evidence that one of the emerging strengths of autoethnography is its transformative capabilities In Transformative Autoethnography for Practitioners Hernandez Chang and Bilgen turn the spotlight on autoethnography as a tool for practitioners where the primary goal is to solve real world problems by facilitating transformational change at the individual group and or organizational levels They draw on existing scholarship as well as their collective work and expertise to provide a Transformative Autoethnographic Model TAM for use by practitioners who are intent on effecting such changes in their respective contexts The book contains seven chapters Chapters One through Three provide the theoretical grounding for a transformative autoethnography model Chapter One begins with a broad overview of autoethnographic research and the unique characteristics of this method that makes it especially suited for effecting transformational learning In chapters Two and Three the authors provide a quick review of the literature relevant to individual autoethnography and collaborative autoethnography respectively Each chapter discussion is centered around explicating the transformative elements of the method as well as how it is able to effect change at the individual group and organizational level Chapters Four through Six focus on the praxis of transformative autoethnography In Chapter Four the transformative autoethnography model TAM is presented in detail and templates are provided for its application Chapters Five and Six show the application of the TAM in a variety of settings The book ends with a final chapter discussion on the continuing evolution of autoethnographic explorations as well as future applications for the TAM model in a fast changing digital landscape Perfect for courses such as Research Methods in the Social Sciences Qualitative Research Methods Narrative Research Advanced Qualitative Research Methods Coaching and Consulting Leading Change
