Communication A Critical Or Cultural Introduction:

Communication John T. Warren, Deanna L. Fassett, 2014-01-06 Communication A Critical Cultural Introduction Second Edition introduces communication from intimate and interpersonal to the public and mediated as cultural. Using contemporary critical theory authors John T. Warren and Deanna L. Fassett focus on communication as advocacy inherently influenced by culture, history and power. By situating communication concepts and theories within contemporary and engaging cultural scenes the book is much more than a survey of ideas it demonstrates the power of communication in our everyday lives.

Intercultural Communication Ingrid Piller, 2017-06-27 Combining perspectives from discourse analysis and sociolinguistics the second edition of this popular textbook provides students with an up to date overview of the field of intercultural communication. Ingrid Piller explains communication in context using two main approaches. The first treats cultural identity difference and similarity as discursive constructions. The second, informed by bilingualism studies, highlights the use and prestige of different languages and language varieties as well as the varying access that speakers have to them.

Key Concepts in Critical Cultural Studies Linda Steiner, Clifford Christians, 2010-10-01 This volume brings together sixteen essays on key and intersecting topics in critical cultural studies from major scholars in the field. Taking into account the vicissitudes of political, social and cultural issues the contributors engage deeply with the evolving understanding of critical concepts such as history, community, culture, identity, politics, ethics, globalization and technology. The essays address the extent to which these concepts have been useful to scholars, policy makers and citizens as well as the ways they must be rethought and reconsidered if they are to continue to be viable. Each essay considers what is known and understood about these concepts. The essays give particular attention to how relevant ideas, themes and terms were developed, elaborated and deployed in the work of James W. Carey, the founding father of cultural studies in the United States. The contributors map how these important concepts, including Carey's own work, with them have evolved over time and how these concepts intersect. The result is a coherent volume that redefines the still emerging field of critical cultural studies. Contributors are Stuart Allan, Jack Zeljko Bratich, Clifford Christians, Norman Denzin, Mark Fackler, Robert Fortner, Lawrence Grossberg, Joli Jensen, Steve Jones, John Nerone, Lana Rakow, Quentin J. Schultze, Linda Steiner, Angharad N. Valdivia, Catherine Warren, Frederick Wasser and Barbie Zelizer.

This book aims to promote understanding of the nature of stereotypes and to suggest ways in which teachers can manage them by developing critical cultural awareness as an intrinsic part of the intercultural communicative competence of their students. Part 1 of the book explores ways of defining eliciting and illustrating stereotypes from theoretical standpoints. Part 2 showcases ways of addressing stereotypes through intercultural language education to provide teachers with a firm platform for the practical application of their knowledge and skills when attempting to manage stereotypes in the classroom Postmodernism, Feminism, and Cultural Politics Henry A. Giroux, 1991-01-22 This book introduces central assumptions that govern postmodern and feminist theory offering educators a language to create new ways of conceiving pedagogy and its relationship to social cultural and intellectual life It challenges some of the major categories and practices that have dominated educational theory and practice in the United States and in other countries since the beginning of the twentieth century Rejecting the apolitical nature of some postmodern discourses and the separatism characteristic of some versions of cultural feminism the contributors take a political stand rooted in concern with cultural and social justice In so doing these essays represent a linguistic shift regarding how we think about ethics foundationalism difference and culture The selections present a concern with developing a language that is critical of master narratives racism sexism and those technologies of power in schools that subjugate infantilize and oppress students The authors also develop a language of possibility that focuses on analyzing how power can be linked productively to knowledge how teachers can construct classroom social relations based on notions of equity and justice how critical pedagogy can contribute to an identity politics that is grounded in democratic relations and how teachers can develop analyses that enable students to become self reflective actors as they transform themselves and the conditions of their social existence

Cultural Reflections and the Role of Advertising in the Socio-economic and National Development of Nigeria Emmanuel C. Alozie, 2005 This study focuses on the role of advertising in the process of social mobilization and modernization in Nigeria by examining the cultural reflections the nature and characteristics of the messages and the values and symbols conveyed in Nigerian mass media advertisements In this remarkable study Emmanuel C Alozie has attempted to explore the role of advertising in the national and economic development of Nigeria Examining this role through a combination of quantitative content analysis and critical cultural methods he has pursued a number of basic research questions For example one question asks what proportion of the advertisements in Nigerian mass media is directed to business entities as opposed to ordinary consumers The answer he provides presents an interesting perspective on advertising s role His research also found that most ads were product related and less than a third of the ads were related to service one indication of the relative underdevelopment of the economy Ads also promoted largely nonessential products and services to the tune of 65 per cent developing country like Nigeria the multitiered government agencies would provide a major share of the media advertising In reality only a tiny proportion about 5 per cent actually came from government sources the rest of the advertising was provided by the national and multinational corporations Alozie also found that Nigerian sponsors tend to promote goods of foreign origin over those of Nigerian derivative Overall he found that less than half the products and services advertised 42 per cent were of Nigerian origin with much of the products nonessential in nature Advertising messages with embedded appeals have the potential of manipulating consumers and promoting unproductive consumption habits among consumers in a situation of scarcity Therefore the appeals that are used in the advertising content become an important issue in a developing nation like Nigeria Alozie did not find extensive use of the image youth and sex appeals in the ads so prevalent in the West even though some of these appeals were found to have crept into the content primary selling point In addition emphasis was on savings family and safety for products regardless of whether the ads featured high involvement or low involvement products and services For decades policy makers in the developing world have debated the need for using mass media for human resource moralization by emphasizing developmental themes To what extent Nigerian ads contain developmental themes is a question Alozie explores He finds that some ads do contain developmental themes such as savings self development modernization investment hard work competition etc These themes however appear rather infrequently Financial institutions emphasize developmental themes while manufacturing enterprises do not The author underscores the need for the government to encourage private and public corporations to include developmental themes in their advertising messages to promote individual as well as communal or collective interests messages the author draws some broad conclusions that provide significant insight into Nigeria s prevailing advertising scene For example he concludes that the degree of information on products and services available in the country is inadequate because of low level advertising Even though developmental themes are employed in advertising messages the sparcity of their use is not likely to promote national development Broadcast advertisements are more democratic than those in the print media primarily because they promote products and services more affordable to the average consumer In general consumer products advertised in Nigeria are frequently of foreign origin and therefore they are targeted to the elite who can afford the expensive nonessential products The author recognizes the value and need for advertising that can disseminate not only beneficial information about products and services but can also serve as an effective tool in government s hands to promote information on significant social and developmental issues and policies that will affect the public scholars and researchers have contributed to the sizeable existing literature on development few have examined advertising as a meaningful means of communication for developmental messages and values Through his study Alozie has attempted to fill this void Students and scholars with an interest in the media of developing nations will find the articulation of the various theories concerning socio economic development quite stimulating But more importantly by answering a range of significant questions about the nature and types of advertising messages published or aired in the Nigerian mass media discussing what themes and values they contain and how relevant they are or influence the developmental goals of the nation the author offers a study that is useful insightful and rewarding Critical Issues in Communication Srinivas R Melkote, Sandhya Rao, 2001-06-04 Critical Issues in Communication comprises of original essays by a number of leading scholars in the field writing from diverse academic political and cultural backgrounds They explore some of the issues that currently challenge media and communication theory and practice while charting new roles for communication and the media The Critical Communications Review, 1984

Undergraduate Catalog University of Michigan--Dearborn, 2011 Cultural Studies and Critical Theory Patrick Fuery, Nick Mansfield, 2000 The second edition of Cultural Studies and the New Humanities provides a comprehensive overview of issues in the humanities at the turn of the new millennium providing historical background defining key terms and introducing the ideas of key thinkers This second edition has been thoroughly revised and updated and new chapters have been added about the rise of visual cultures and the fierce contemporary debate between identity politics and queer theory Media Law Notes, 1997 Ethical Perspectives and Critical Issues in Intercultural Communication Nobleza C.
