Building Facades: A Guide To Common Defects In Tropical Climates Yit Lin Michael Chew, 1998-02-20 Much attention has been given to the increasing number of defects on building facades in relation to the construction industry's growing use of large panel curtain walls. This book highlights the various types of defects commonly found on building facades under tropical conditions. The facade elements discussed include natural stone, glass, metal, sheeting, plaster, and tiling. The causes of defects such as poor workmanship, inadequate design and maintenance, inappropriate use of materials, and the action of environmental agents are evaluated. The typical problems highlighted include cracking, water penetration, misalignment, sealant defects, discoloration, staining, efflorescence, corrosion, and tile delamination. The causes of these defects and their implications for design, construction, and maintenance are described. Illustrated with many photographs, this book will be a useful guide both to practising professionals and to undergraduate and graduate students.

Congenital Diaphragmatic Hernia Eleanor Molloy, 2012-07-19 Congenital Diaphragmatic hernia (CDH) occurs in approximately 1 in every 2,500 births and the cause is yet unknown. This book describes the embryology, genetics, antenatal diagnosis, management, associated congenital anomalies, and long-term outcomes of children with CDH. It is a valuable up-to-date reference for pediatricians, neonatologists, and allied health professionals who care for children with CDH.
