Phonics Screening Check

What is phonics?

Phonics is the study of the sounds of words and how they are written. It is the study of the relationship between the sounds of words and the letters that represent them.

Phonics is an important part of learning to read and write. It helps children to understand how words are made and how they are written. This helps them to read and write more easily.

What is the phonics screening check?

The phonics screening check is a test that checks how well children can hear and use the sounds of words. It is a test that is taken at the end of Year One.

The test is made up of two parts. The first part is a listening test where children hear a word and have to say what it is. The second part is a reading test where children have to read a word that they have heard.

How is the phonics screening check done?

The phonics screening check is done by a teacher or a teaching assistant. The teacher will read out a list of words and the children will have to say what they hear. Then the teacher will read out a list of words and the children will have to read the words that they hear.

What is the purpose of the phonics screening check?

The purpose of the phonics screening check is to find out how well children can hear and use the sounds of words. This helps teachers to know what children need to learn next. It also helps parents to know how their child is doing.

What if my child doesn't pass?

If a child doesn't pass the phonics screening check, they will be given extra help. This help will be given in the form of extra lessons and practice. The child will be given more time to learn the sounds of words and how to read and write them.
