Monthly Expense Tracking

The very first step to organizing your financial independence checklist is to identify your financial goals. These are the steps you want to go through to get there.

To track your spending over time, you want to go through your budget for a month.

Checklist to Financial Independence

If you have any form of financial goal - such as getting your debt free, saving for retirement, or buying a house - this checklist will help you get there.

This is the freedom of being able to do what you want to do.

Independence of where you want to live, financial freedom from stress that becomes your only worry because you have it.

Use this list to review if financial independence what areas to focus on that way.

Monthly Budget Worksheet

Once you have tracked your finances and have an understanding of the income coming in and spending going out, it's time to create a budget.

This is where you will review all expense categories

Welcome!

This booklet may be used this organizer is too.

- Print all income pages as you like, or use a pdf editing tool to fill in income automatically. I find it easiest for printing off pages for a budget in a year, one at a time, and then print them like this.
- Look over the table of contents.
- Now where you are in your personal finance journey and which worksheet is best for you. If you are just getting started, or you may need to do a general budget, then start with the first page. If you are more advanced, then go to the second page. If you are more advanced, then go to the third page.
- Now with these worksheets you can organize your financial independence. This is for both personal and professional purposes of your home and how it's organized on your file or folder.
- Take a look at the bottoms of each page, if there is a corresponding link, click that with the ability on personal to easier to do what you need to do. If there is a link to another page, click that link and you can click on and other section on the page.
