

Assignment 1.2: Understanding the Document

1. What does the passage suggest the author's attitude is toward the "other side" of the community?
The author's attitude is one of sympathy and understanding. He acknowledges the struggles of the "other side" and suggests that they are not inherently wrong, but rather victims of a system that has failed them.
2. What does the author suggest is the primary cause of the community's problems?
The author suggests that the primary cause of the community's problems is the lack of economic opportunity and the resulting poverty. He argues that the system has failed to provide the "other side" with the means to improve their lives.
3. What does the author suggest is the role of the government in addressing the community's problems?
The author suggests that the government has a responsibility to address the community's problems. He argues that the government should provide the "other side" with the resources and support they need to improve their lives.
4. What does the author suggest is the role of the community in addressing the community's problems?
The author suggests that the community has a responsibility to address its own problems. He argues that the "other side" should work together to improve their lives and create a better future for themselves.
5. What does the author suggest is the role of the media in addressing the community's problems?
The author suggests that the media has a responsibility to address the community's problems. He argues that the media should provide the "other side" with the information and support they need to improve their lives.
6. What does the author suggest is the role of the church in addressing the community's problems?
The author suggests that the church has a responsibility to address the community's problems. He argues that the church should provide the "other side" with the spiritual and emotional support they need to improve their lives.
7. What does the author suggest is the role of the family in addressing the community's problems?
The author suggests that the family has a responsibility to address the community's problems. He argues that the family should provide the "other side" with the love and support they need to improve their lives.
8. What does the author suggest is the role of the individual in addressing the community's problems?
The author suggests that the individual has a responsibility to address the community's problems. He argues that each person should do their part to improve the community and create a better future for all.
