

Chapter 4

Systems Design: Process Costing

Solutions to Questions

4-1 A process costing system should be used in situations where a homogeneous product is produced on a continuous basis.

4-2

1. Job-order costing and process costing have the same basic purposes—to assign materials, labor, and overhead cost to products and to provide a mechanism for computing unit product costs.
2. Both systems use the same basic manufacturing accounts.
3. Costs flow through the accounts in basically the same way in both systems.

4-3 Costs are accumulated by department in a process costing system.

4-4 In a process costing system, the activity performed in a department must be performed uniformly on all units moving through it and the output of the department must be homogeneous.

4-5 Cost accumulation is simpler under process costing because costs only need to be assigned to departments—not separate jobs. A company usually has a small number of processing departments, whereas a job-order costing system often must keep track of the costs of hundreds or even thousands of jobs.

4-6 In a process costing system, a Work in Process account is maintained for each separate processing department.

4-7 The journal entry would be:
Work in Process, Firing..... XXXX
 Work in Process, Mixing..... XXXX

4-8 The costs that might be added in the Firing Department include: (1) costs transferred in from the Mixing Department; (2) materials costs added in the Firing Department; (3) labor costs added in the Firing Department; and (4) overhead costs added in the Firing Department.

4-9 Under the weighted-average method, equivalent units of production consist of units transferred to the next department (or to finished goods) during the period plus the equivalent units in the department's ending work in process inventory.

4-10 A quantity schedule summarizes the physical flow of units through a department during a period. It serves several purposes. First, it provides information about activity in the department and also shows the stage of completion of any in-process units. Second, it provides data for computing the equivalent units and for preparing the other parts of the production report.

4-11 In process costing a unit of product accumulates cost in each department that it passes through, with the costs of one department added to the costs of the preceding department in a snowballing fashion.

4-12 The company will want to distinguish between the costs of the metals used to make the medallions, but the medals are otherwise identical and go through the same production processes. Thus, operation costing is ideally suited for the company's needs.

4-13 Any company that manufactures products that have some common characteristics and some individual characteristics may want to use operation costing. Examples include textiles, shoes, electronic parts, and clothing.
