Capturing Identity

Capturing Identity Meike Watzlawik, Aristi Born, 2007-06-15 Scientists from six countries well known for their work in the field of identity research explain and comment on methodological approaches used to research identity. This book concentrates on qualitative methods such as narrative identity analysis or semi structured interviewing techniques to determine identity status as well as the quantitative method of using questionnaires. It also discusses the advantages and disadvantages of these methods and their future integration. The reader will learn about qualitative and quantitative research and discover the similarities and differences between the methods of researching identity depending on research with methodological roots in one field the other or both. Chapters include James E. Marcia presents his latest thoughts and experiences regarding the identity status concept and focuses on the Identity Status Interview ISI as a method to obtain empirical access to ego identity development. Guenter Mey presents a case study from his project Adolescence Identity Narration based on problem centered interviews and the specific interviewing transcription and data analysis procedures utilized. Mechthild Kiegelmann introduces the Voice Approach a qualitative oriented research method developed by Carol Gilligan, Lyn Brown and their colleagues which can be applied to identity research. Luc Goossens and Koen Luyckx present their results which are mostly based on questionnaires offering a broad range of data analyses. Wim Meeus the author of the Utrecht Groningen Identity Development Scale and Minet de Wied offer an overview of twenty five years of research on relationships with parents and identity in adolescence.

Understanding and implementing catch documentation schemes Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2022-02-04 Catch documentation schemes CDS are just one in an array of tools designed to combat illegal unreported and unregulated IUU fishing. The schemes provide a means for countries to cooperate in providing information about the legality of fish as it moves through the supply chain from catch to market. Many countries are familiar with the specific information requirements on CDS forms, some however are less aware of the need for robust national systems to validate and verify that information. This document seeks to align and improve existing national monitoring, control and surveillance MCS tools as well as product tracking systems in order to support more effective national CDS implementation and strengthen CDS throughout the international supply chain. The document contains chapters on the legal and policy background to CDS, an introduction to the features and requirements of existing schemes as well as guidance on how to handle CDS information requirements and identify national key data elements. Finally it provides a series of exercises for assessing relevant national capabilities and coordination processes including the management and exchange of information.

Using Mixed Methods to Study

Intersectionality in Higher Education Kimberly A. Griffin, Samuel D. Museus, 2011-09-26 This volume offers institutional researchers several examples of the ways in which quantitative and qualitative methods can be integrated for a better grasp of how members of our educational communities understand and experience their environments on the basis of their multiple identities. The first two chapters provide context for the volume's theme with definitions and overview of the underpinnings of mixed methodology. Subsequent chapters illustrate the multiple ways in which qualitative and quantitative methods can be integrated to understand the complexity of identity and experiences of marginalized groups in the academy. Other chapters focus on students' experiences and demonstrate how mixed methodology approaches were used to explore college access among first generation Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders, analyze racial ideology of white males with interview data, driving analysis of longitudinal dataset and research and assessment generating accurate understanding how of race and gender shape students' experiences within the campus. The final chapter presents findings of a mixed methods inquiry to challenge current conceptions about racial categorization and practices for gathering institutional data on students' identity. Volume editors Kimberly A. Griffin, assistant professor of education policy studies at the Pennsylvania State University and Samuel D. Museus, assistant professor of educational administration at University of Hawai'i Manoa and contributing authors advocate for intersectionality research and argue that it holds great promise for advancing knowledge in higher education. Their book is ideal for institutions and institutional researchers who want to understand and most effectively serve their students and faculty. This is the 151st volume of the Jossey Bass quarterly report series New Directions for Institutional Research. Always timely and comprehensive, New Directions for Institutional Research provides planners and administrators in all types of academic institutions with guidelines in such areas as resource coordination, information analysis, program evaluation and institutional management.

Remnants Elyse Semerdjian, 2023-08-15 A groundbreaking and profoundly moving exploration of the Armenian genocide told through the traces left in the memories and on the bodies of its women survivors Foremost among the images of the Armenian Genocide is the specter of tattooed Islamized Armenian women Blue tribal tattoos that covered face and body signified assimilation into Muslim Bedouin and Kurdish households Among Armenians the tattooed survivor was seen as a living ethnomartyr or alternatively a national stain and the bodies of women and children figured centrally within the Armenian communal memory and humanitarian imaginary In Remnants these tattooed and scar bearing bodies reveal a larger history as the lived trauma of genocide is understood through bodies skin and in what remains of those lives a century afterward bones With this book Elyse Semerdjian offers a feminist reading of the Armenian Genocide She explores how the Ottoman Armenian communal body was dismembered disfigured and later re-membered by the survivor community Gathering individual memories and archival fragments she writes a deeply personal history and issues a call to break open the archival record in order to embrace affect and memory Traces of women and children rescued during and after the war are reconstructed to center the quietest voices in the historical record This daring work embraces physical and archival remnants the imprinted negatives of once living bodies as a space of radical possibility within Armenian prosthetic memory and a necessary way to recognize the absence that remains
