

Q10 10. Assignment

Consider the following chemical reaction. What substitution mechanism is most likely to be responsible for the formation of the product?

5. Mechanism

Reaction mechanism involves understanding the steps:

Order of reaction: $\text{rate} \propto [\text{A}]^m [\text{B}]^n$, where m is the order of A and n is the order of B

1st order reaction: the rate of reaction is proportional to the concentration of one reactant. This suggests a unimolecular reaction, where the rate-determining step involves only one molecule of the reactant.

2nd order reaction: the rate of reaction is proportional to the concentration of two reactants.

3rd order reaction: the rate of reaction is proportional to the concentration of three reactants.

10. The reaction of 1-bromobutane with hydroxide ions is a 2nd order reaction.
