Globalization Development and Social Justice Ann El Khoury,2015-03-27 Are there existing alternatives to corporate globalization What are the prospects for and commonalities between communities and movements such as Occupy the World Social Forum and alternative economies Globalization Development and Social Justice advances the proposition that another globalization is not only possible but already exists It demonstrates that there are multiple pathways towards development with social justice and argues that enabling propositional agency rather than oppositional agency such as resistance is a more effective alternative to neoliberal globalization El Khoury develops a theory of infraglobalization that emphasizes creative constitution not just contestation of global and local processes The book features case studies and examples of diverse economic practice and innovative emergent political forms from the Global South and North These case studies are located in the informal social economy and community development as well as everyday practices from prefigurative politics to community cooperatives and participatory planning This book makes an important contribution to debates about the prospects for and practices of a transformative grassroots globalization and to critical debates about globalization and development strategies It will be of interest to students and scholars of international relations globalization social movement studies political and economic geography sociology anthropology and development studies

Discursive Governance in Politics, Policy, and the Public Sphere Umut Korkut,Gregg Bucken-Knapp,Robert Henry Cox,Kesi Mahendran,2016-04-29 This book studies the dynamics of political discourse in governance processes It demonstrates the process in which political discourses become normative mechanisms first marking socially constructed realities in politics second playing a role in delineating the subsequent policy frames and third influencing the public sphere

Development of executive function during childhood Yusuke Moriguchi,Philip D Zelazo,Nicolas Chevalier,2016-04-01 Executive function refers to the goal oriented regulation of one s own thoughts actions and emotions Its importance is attested by its contribution to the development of other cognitive skills e g theory of mind social abilities e g peer interactions and academic achievement e g mathematics and by the consequences of deficits in executive function which are observed in wide range of developmental disorders such as attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and autism Over the last decade there have been growing interest in the development of executive function and an expanding body of research has shown that executive function develops rapidly during the preschool years with adult level performance being achieved during adolescence or later This recent work together with experimental research showing the effects of interventions targeting executive function has yielded important insights into the neurocognitive processes underlying executive function. Given the complexity of the construct of executive function however and the multiplicity of underlying processes there are often inconsistencies in the way that executive function is defined and studied. This inconsistency has hampered communication among researchers from various fields. This Research Topic is intended to bridge this gap and provide an opportunity for researchers from different perspectives to discuss recent advances in understanding childhood executive function. Researchers using various methods including behavioral experiments, neuroimaging, eye tracking, computer simulation, observational methods and questionnaires are encouraged to contribute original empirical research. In addition to original empirical articles, theoretical reviews and opinions, perspective articles on promising future directions are welcome. We hope that researchers from different areas such as developmental psychology, educational psychology, experimental psychology, neuropsychology, neuroscience, psychiatry, computational science etc will be represented in the Research Topic.
