Success in Higher Education Leigh N. Wood,Yvonne A. Breyer,2016-10-26 This book explores successful transition strategies to within and from university for students from around the globe with Macquarie University a large Australian university studied in depth It addresses the meaning of success taking a variety of perspectives including student staff and employer views The chapters present a series of initiatives that have proven to be successful in assisting students in developing their academic potential throughout university and beyond The authors of the chapters use a variety of methodologies and approaches reflecting the diverse local contexts and requirements These international perspectives demonstrate a triumph of practice that has led to the empowerment of individuals and groups The approaches from twelve universities located in eight different countries stem directly from the coalface and provide many valuable lessons and tools that colleagues in the sector will be able to consider and adapt in their own contexts Small interventions matter from a mentor of a nervous student who goes on to achieve greatness to the use of a curriculum design model that hooks a whole group of students into learning and achievement This book covers both the small individual victories and the larger scale strategies that support success Contributions emanate from Australia Bangladesh India China New Zealand United Kingdom Canada USA Uruguay and South Africa Reflections of South African University Leaders: 1981 to 2014 Council on Higher Education,2016-03-17 Much has been written about the ever growing demands on university leadership worldwide in the face of increasingly complex changes and challenges from within the academy and beyond However as we are reminded by Johan Muller in the Introduction to this book there are particular features of time and place that also throw up unique

problems It is precisely time and place that make this set of reflections by university leaders quite remarkable and distinguishes it from the many biographies to be found in the literature on higher education leadership In the main this collection spans two decades the 1990s and 2000s of unprecedented levels of change in South African higher education Leaders in universities as well as those responsible for higher education policy in the government and associated statutory bodies had no neat script to work off nor manuals or prescripts of good leadership or practice Instead there was palpable excitement about collectively imagining and nurturing a new post apartheid higher education system which would contribute to the social and economic development needs of the country the deepening of democracy and which would also be globally relevant Most reflections touch on the coalface of leadership which is the face to face interactional dimension dealing with staff with students with council chairs What comes through clearly is the importance of what are sometimes called people skills In these accounts this is not simply presented as a human relations aptitude for a number of reasons first of which is the special nature of universities and their occupants More than one points out the special challenge of managing the talented people that are academics and their inbuilt distaste for bureaucracy their reluctance to be managed or told what to do The message here is consistently one of needing to be completely open with academics the importance of maintaining the distinction between collegial and executive management avoiding managerialism and the critical importance of winning and holding their trust The inspiration for this collection arose in late 2013 in the Council on Higher Education s CHE Monitoring and Evaluation Directorate the directorate responsible for conducting research on the higher education landscape and monitoring the state of the sector They noted that conditions besetting universities had grown increasingly complex both globally but more especially locally and the question arose how had this altered the challenges to university leadership over the period between the new political dispensation and the second decade of the new millennium More particularly how had leaders with a proven track record of visionary and strong leadership during this period faced these challenges How did they see the main changes that needed dealing with What challenges did these changes pose and how were they successfully overcome What did they think looking back were the main constituents of successful leadership and management What wisdom could be distilled for posterity The Directorate decided to invite a range of vice chancellors and senior academic leaders who had completed their terms of office to contribute to a project that set out to gather such reflections and compile them into a publication Covid-19 Management and Responses René Pellissier,2023-04-06 When the Cape Higher Education Consortium CHEC South Africa decided to develop a book on Covid 19 management and responses higher education was in the midst of its endeavours to manage how we respond to this threat to ensure academic continuity and integrity Universities mostly followed their own strategies and initiatives reactively having little time to be proactive At this point most higher education institutions have steadied their approaches to teaching and learning and to managing their university services in response to the threat There is clear evidence that the world as we knew it and in which our practices

had been developed has changed and will continue to do so with increasing threats and demands on our higher education systems This book provides the collaborative approaches from a range of academic practitioners and managers to develop some mental model of the practices we adopted and possible lessons learnt in the process

THE BOOK Applying to college is likely the most stressful and important moment in a teenager's academic life Pressure from friends family teachers and oneself add up to make this an overwhelming process to go through especially for students applying to the nation's most selective schools One major reason for this stress is the uncertainty of the application process Often the students who apply to top schools are used to feeling in control of their lives and planning their future but because there are no sure admittances in elite admissions the feeling of helplessness can be overwhelming There are a number of resources available to students who wish to maximize their chances of admission however I as a former admission officer at a selective university feel that many are misleading In some cases the advice given is very specific to one school which isn't useful for the majority of students or it's too vague And in some other cases students try to compare their statistics with the statistics of other seemingly similar students to gauge their chances of admission perhaps the worst resource of all MEET

THE AUTHOR Erinn Andrews is the former Assistant Director of Undergraduate Admissions at Stanford University She read and evaluated thousands of applications from the US as well as more than 70 countries around the world and through that she has developed a unique perspective on what it takes to get into the nation's elite colleges She completed an M A in Education at Stanford University's School of Education in the Policy Organization and Leadership Studies Program She also earned a B A in History with Honors at Stanford She now works with students to help them uncover their intellectual and personal interests and present the best version of themselves in the elite admissions process EXCERPT FROM THE BOOK

The purpose of the application in selective admissions is to understand the context from which the applicant is coming In order to decide which students to admit when admit rates are so low Once the context has been established then the admission officer tries to find out if the student has taken advantage of the opportunities available to him and has either a made a lasting impact in his community in some way or b has the potential to make a lasting impact in his future community college and beyond Despite popular belief every application is actually read in its entirety by an admission officer in the selective admissions process

The College Hook Pam Proctor,2009-10-31 A comprehensive guide to the powerful packaging tool called the Hook a special talent or achievement that leaps off the page of a college application and catches the eye of admissions officers Competition for entry to the nation's top colleges is at an all time high and intensifying every year Now nationally recognized college consultant and writer Pam Proctor reveals the packaging secrets that can help any student maximize the odds of admission to the college of his or her choice Using real life anecdotes and examples from winning applications Proctor provides students with a step by step program that will enable them to determine and develop their unique Hook and then package and market themselves at every stage of the admissions process

College

Admissions for the 21st Century Robert J. Sternberg, 2011-02-01 SATs ACTs GPAs Everyone knows that these scores can tell a college everything that's important about an applicant. But what else should admissions officers look for and how can they know it when they see it? In College Admissions for the 21st Century, a leading researcher on intelligence and creativity offers a bold and practical approach to college admissions testing. Standardized tests are measures of memory and analytical skills. But the ever changing global society beyond a college campus needs more than just those qualities, argues Robert Sternberg. Tomorrow's leaders and citizens also need creativity, practicality, and wisdom. How can the potential for those complex qualities be measured? One answer is Kaleidoscope, a new initiative in undergraduate admissions first used at Tufts University. Its open ended questions for applicants and the means used to score the answers gives applicants and admissions officers the chance to go beyond standardized tests. Does it work? As Sternberg describes in detail, Kaleidoscope measures predicted first year academic success over and above SATs and high school GPAs and predicted first year extracurricular activities, leadership, and active citizenship as well. And every year that Kaleidoscope measures were used, the entering class's average SATs and high school GPAs went up, too. What worked at Tufts can work elsewhere. New kinds of assessments like Kaleidoscope can liberate many colleges and students from the narrowness of standardized tests and inspire new approaches to teaching for new kinds of talented, motivated citizens of the world. College Admissions Together: It Takes a Family Steven Roy Goodman, Andrea Leiman, 2007
