Battle Lines Eliza Richards,2018-12-28 During the U S Civil War a combination of innovative technologies and catastrophic events stimulated the development of news media into a central cultural force Reacting to the dramatic increases in news reportage and circulation poets responded to an urgent need to make their work immediately relevant to current events As poetry s compressed forms traveled more quickly and easily than stories novels or essays through ephemeral print media it moved alongside and engaged with news reports often taking on the task of imagining the mental states of readers on receiving accounts from the war front Newspaper and magazine poetry had long editorialized on political happenings Indian wars slavery and abolition prison reform women s rights but the unprecedented scope of what has been called the first modern war and the centrality of the issues involved for national futures generated a powerful sense of single mindedness among readers and writers that altered the terms of poetic expression In Battle Lines Eliza Richards charts the transformation of Civil War poetry arguing that it was fueled by a symbiotic relationship between the development of mass media networks and modern warfare Focusing primarily on the North Richards explores how poets working in this new environment mediated events via received literary traditions Collectively and with a remarkable consistency poems pulled out key features of events and drew on common tropes and practices to mythologize commemorate and ponder the consequences of distant battles The lines of communication reached outward through newspapers and magazines to writers such as Dickinson Whitman and Melville who drew their inspiration from their peers poetic practices and reconfigured them in ways that bear the traces of their engagements

The Light of Tabor David Bentley Hart,2025-09-01 In The Light of Tabor award winning theologian David Bentley Hart proposes an approach to the nature of Christ that is profoundly radical yet deeply classical For centuries Christian theology has rested on a paradox Beginning with the Council of Chalcedon in the fifth century the major Christian traditions have held that Jesus Christ combines two distinct natures he is fully God and somehow fully human Yet this tenet has traditionally invited irresolvable metaphysical contradictions David Bentley Hart delves deeply into the seemingly irresolvable tensions providing the first theological attempt to show how the logic of the earliest churches angelomorphic Christology is continuous with later Chalcedonian orthodoxy Hart draws on theologians from every epoch of Christian thought from Origen to Sergei Bulgakov while making free use of concepts from other spiritual traditions such as Vedanta The Light of Tabor proposes an approach to Christology that is thoroughly monistic both as regards Being and as regards nature Hart argues that the only coherent reading of the figure of Christ is one that fully embraces the essential unity of all things divine and natural through him proposing an approach to Christology that affirms classical doctrine without retaining the dualistic presuppositions that have haunted theology since the age of the great councils Man and His Enemies Svetozar Minkov,Piotr Nowak,2008 Ilicit Trafficking in Nuclear Materials Bruce Hoffman,1999 On the Methodology of Economics and the Formalist Revolution Terence Wilmot Hutchison,2000 A collection of essays examining the methodological problems confronting economists in the face of two major developments in the second half of the 20th century the increase in writings on the methodology or philosophy of economics and the formalist revolution Proceedings of the 7th European Conference on Pattern Languages of Programs, 2002 Alan O'Callaghan,2003
