Psychological Suspense Media Sensation:

Cognitive Film and Media Ethics Wyatt Moss-Wellington, 2021 Cognitive Film and Media Ethics provides a grounding in the use of cognitive science to address key questions in film television and screen media ethics. This book extends past works in cognitive media studies to answer normative and ethically prescriptive questions what could make media morally good or bad and what then are the respective responsibilities of media producers and consumers. Moss Wellington makes a primary claim that normative propositions are a kind of rigour in that they force media theorists to draw more active ought conclusions from descriptive is arguments. Cognitive Film and Media Ethics presents the rigours of normative reasoning cognitive science and consequentialist ethics as complementary arguing that each seeks progressive elaboration on their own models of causality and causal projections are crucial for any reflection on our moral responsibilities in the world. A hermeneutics of ethical cognitivism is applied in the latter half of the book with essays each addressing a different case study in film television news and social media cinema that sets out to inspire moral dissonance in the viewer satirical and humorous depictions of family drama in film and television the politics of the romantic comedy formal aspects of screen media bullying in an era dubbed the television renaissance and contemporary problems in the conflation of news and social media. Cognitive Film and Media Ethics synthesises current research in social psychology anthropology memory studies emotion and cognition personality and media selection and evolutionary biology integrating wide ranging concepts from the various disciplines that make up cognitive theory to provide new vantages on the applied ethics of film and screen media

Film as a Medium of Seduction Marcus Stiglegger, 2024-03-14

The seduction theory defines film in a broader sense as a medium of seduction based on the French concept of seduction. It is a theoretical approach influenced by continental philosophy and classical film theory linked to a three stage analytical model. The book introduces the theoretical foundations and using various classical and contemporary examples from film history presents a genuine method of film analysis

Making Sense of Television

Sonia Livingstone, 2013-03-07 Taking the soap opera as a case study this book explores the parasocial interaction people engage in with television programmes. It looks at the nature of the active viewer and the role of the text in social psychology. It also investigates the existing theoretical models offered by social psychology and other discourses. This second edition takes into account recent research work and theoretical developments in fields such as narrative psychology social representation theory and ethnographic work on audiences and look forward to the developing role of audience research. It will be an essential study for students and lecturers in social psychology and media studies
