

CBIP Guidelines on Protection

SPECIAL COMMENTS

- (i) If found necessary, at certain locations, out of step tripping relays shall be provided for islanding the system during disturbances.
- (ii) For short line application distance relays should have shaped characteristics for ground faults and be used in permissive over reach mode with weak end infeed logic. Further, if it is a double circuit line, current reversal should also be available.
- (iii) O/V relay for 400 kV lines shall be connected to trip concerned line breaker, start LBB, block auto reclosure and send direct trip command.
- (iv) The directional earth fault relay recommended along with the distance relay should be seen as a supplement to it and not as a back up. It helps to detect very high resistance fault which distance relay cannot.
- (v) HVDC Systems connected to AC networks with low short circuit levels can influence AC line protections in its vicinity. This aspect needs to be looked into on case to case basis.
