Cooper, 2018-08-07 Immunologists perhaps understandably most often concentrate on the human immune system an anthropocentric focus that has resulted in a dearth of information about the immune function of all other species within the animal kingdom However knowledge of animal immune function could help not only to better understand human immunology but perhaps more importantly it could help to treat and avoid the blights that affect animals which consequently affect humans Take for example the mass death of honeybees in recent years their demise resulting in much less pollination poses a serious threat to numerous crops and thus the food supply There is a similar disappearance of frogs internationally signaling ecological problems among them fungal infections This book aims to fill this void by describing and discussing what is known about non human immunology It covers various major animal phyla its chapters organized in a progression from the simplest unicellular organisms to the most complex vertebrates mammals Chapters are written by experts covering the latest findings and new research being conducted about each phylum Edwin L Cooper is a Distinguished Professor in the Laboratory of Comparative Immunology Department of Neurobiology at UCLA s David Geffen School of Medicine Evolution and Comparative Immunology of Immune Systems in Marine Organisms Gyri T.
