□□,2003 Perspectives Studies in Translatology 2003 4 Evaluation and Translation Carol Maier,2014-04-23 The definition of value or quality with respect to work in translation has historically been a particularly vexed issue Today however the growing demand for translations in such fields as technology and business and the increased scrutiny of translators work by scholars in many disciplines is giving rise to a need for more nuanced more specialized and more explicit methods of determining value Some refer to this determination as evaluation others use the term assessment Either way the question is one of measurement and judgement which are always unavoidably subjective and frequently rest on criteria that are not overtly expressed This means that devising more complex evaluative practices involves not only quantitative techniques but also an exploration of the attitudes preferences or individual values on which criteria are established Intended as an interrogation and a critique that can serve to prompt a more thorough and open consideration of evaluative criteria this special issue of The Translator offers examinations of diverse evaluative practices and contains both empirical and hermeneutic work Topics addressed include the evaluation of student translations using more up to date and positive methods such as those employed in corpus studies the translation of non standard language translation into the second language terminology the application of theoretical criteria to practice a social textual perspective and the reviewing of literary translations in the press In addition reviews by a number of literary translators discuss specific translations both into and out of English specialised field It reflects the principles and practice at the heart of the professions and the issues which relate to training and the work place in the modern world Contributors include past and present staff and students of the Bath MAIT and professionals and trainers from other well known institutions Worlds in the Making Edyta Lorek-Jezińska, Teresa Siek-Piskozub, Katarzyna Więckowska, 2006

Systematically Analysing Indirect Translations James Luke Hadley, 2023-05-11

This volume applies digital humanities methodologies to indirect translations in testing the concatenation effect hypothesis The concatenation effect hypothesis suggests that indirect translations tend to omit or alter identifiably foreign elements and also tend not to identify themselves as translations The book begins by introducing the methodological framework to be applied in the chapters that follow and providing an overview of the hypothesis The various chapters focus on specific aspects of the hypothesis that relate to specific linguistic stylistic and visual features of indirect translations These features provide evidence that can be used to assess whether and to what extent the concatenation effect is in evidence in any given example The overarching aim of the book is not to demonstrate or falsify the veracity of the concatenation effect hypothesis or to give any definitive answers to the research questions posed Rather the aim is to pique the curiosity and provoke the creativity of students and researchers in all areas of translation studies who may never have considered indirect translation as relevant to their work

Alexandra Assis Rosa, Hanna Pięta, Rita Bueno Maia, 2020-06-05 In an effort to counter the marginalization of indirect translation in systematic research this book establishes innovative theoretical and methodological grounds and mitigates terminological instability in the field In so doing it unsettles the binary paradigms still predominant in translation research such as original versus translation and source versus target culture language text The contributors focus on the indirect translation of literature and cover a variety of European and Asian cultures and languages such as Assamese Bengali Catalan Chinese Hindi Japanese Kannada Malayalam Marathi Oriya Russian Spanish Swedish Tamil and Urdu This book will be of interest to all researchers studying intercultural relations the probabilistic genealogies of texts the circulation of texts and ideas among dominant and dominated cultures and groups and the implications of English as a main pivot language in today's world This book was originally published as a special issue of Translation Studies the other languages and the institutions of the European Union and to which extent English has the status of a European lingua franca On the other hand the influence of the other languages on English will be looked at which will lead us to the phenomenon of Euro English Finally the opposition of other language communities against the dominance of English will be discussed
