David Copperfield Roman:

David Copperfield Charles Dickens, 1978 David Copperfield Charles Dickens, 1898 David Copperfield Charles Dickens, 2000-11-28 Hugely admired by Tolstoy David Copperfield is the novel that draws most closely from Charles Dickens's own life. Its eponymous hero orphaned as a boy grows up to discover love and happiness, heartbreak and sorrow amid a cast of eccentrics, innocents and villains. Praising Dickens's power of invention, Somerset Maugham wrote, "There were never such people as the Micawbers, Peggotty and Barkis, Traddles, Betsey Trotwood and Mr Dick, Uriah Heep and his mother. They are fantastic inventions of Dickens's exultant imagination; you can never quite forget them." This Modern Library Paperback Classics edition includes a new Introduction by Pulitzer Prize finalist David Gates in addition to new explanatory notes.

David Copperfield Charles Dickens, 1863 David Copperfield Charles Dickens, 2001-03-16 In a preface to this novel Dickens described David Copperfield as his favorite child and the story has remained among the favorites of Dickens readers too, with the characters of Betsy Trotwood, Mr Peggotty, Uriah Heep and Wilkins Micawber as well as David himself becoming part of the fabric of Western culture. This facsimile reprint is of the Household Edition of the Works of Charles Dickens, published in the 1870s; the edition makes the work available again in a form in which tens of thousands of Victorians read it in two column format interspersed with illustrations throughout. David Copperfield was originally published in nineteen monthly parts between May 1, 1849 and November 1, 1850. Each part except the last was of roughly the same length; the final installment was approximately twice as long as the others and sold for 2 shillings, twice the price of previous parts. For the original serial publication as well as early publication in book form, David Copperfield was illustrated by Hablot Browne, more commonly known as Phiz. Shortly after Dickens' death in 1870, the British publisher Chapman described The Household Edition as by far the most important commission ever placed in our hands by Messrs Chapman. The Household Edition may well have been the most popular form in which the novel appeared; however, the plates for The Household Edition were widely used for other editions as well and it is certainly arguable that more Victorian readers would have read Dickens novels in this form than in any other. In 1911 the populist bibliophile J. A. Hammerton described The Household Edition as the most important illustrated edition of Dickens' works. This is one of a series from Broadview Press of facsimile editions that provide readers with a direct sense of these works as the Victorians themselves experienced them. The breaks were as follows: I May 1849 chs 1-3 II June 1849 chs 4-6 III July 1849 chs 7-9 IV August 1849 chs 10-12 V September 1849 chs 13-15 VI October 1849 chs 16-18 VII November 1849 chs 19-21 VIII December 1849 chs 22-24 IX January 1850 chs 25-27 X February 1850 chs 28-31 XI March 1850 chs 32-34 XII April 1850 chs 35-37 XIII May 1850 chs 38-40 XIV June 1850 chs 41-43 XV July 1850 chs 44-46 XVI August 1850 chs 47-50 XVII September 1850 chs 51-53 XVIII October 1850 chs 54-57 XIX XX November 1850 chs 58-64 David Copperfield. David Copperfield Charles Dickens,2014-04-08 I was born with a caul which was advertised for sale in the newspapers at the low price of fifteen guineas Whether sea going people were short of money about that time or were short of faith and preferred cork jackets I don t know all I know is that there was but one solitary bidding and that was from an attorney connected with the bill broking business who offered two pounds in cash and the balance in sherry but declined to be guaranteed from drowning on any higher bargain Consequently the advertisement was withdrawn at a dead loss for as to sherry my poor dear mother s own sherry was in the market then and ten years afterwards the caul was put up in a raffle down in our part of the country to fifty members at half a crown a head the winner to spend five shillings I was present myself and I remember to have felt quite uncomfortable and confused at a part of myself being disposed of in that way The caul was won I recollect by an old lady with a hand basket who very reluctantly produced from it the stipulated five shillings all in halfpence and twopence halfpenny short as it took an immense time and a great waste of arithmetic to endeavour without any effect to prove to her It is a fact which will be long remembered as remarkable down there that she was never drowned but died triumphantly in bed at ninety two I have understood that it was to the last her proudest boast that she never had been on the water in her life except upon a bridge and that over her tea to which she was extremely partial she to the last expressed her indignation at the impiety of mariners and others who had the presumption to go meandering about the world It was in vain to represent to her that some conveniences tea perhaps included resulted from this objectionable practice She always returned with greater emphasis and with an instinctive knowledge of the strength of her objection Let us have no meandering Not to meander myself at present I will go back to my birth David Copperfield Charles

PREFACE TO 1850 EDITION I do not find it easy to get sufficiently far away from this Book in the first sensations of having finished it to refer to it with the composure which this formal heading would seem to require My interest in it is so recent and strong and my mind is so divided between pleasure and regret pleasure in the achievement of a long design regret in the separation from many companions that I am in danger of wearying the reader whom I love with personal confidences and private emotions Besides which all that I could say of the Story to any purpose I have endeavoured to say in it It would concern the reader little perhaps to know how sorrowfully the pen is laid down at the close of a two years imaginative task or how an Author feels as if he were dismissing some portion of himself into the shadowy world when a crowd of the creatures of his brain are going from him for ever Yet I have nothing else to tell unless indeed I were to confess which might be of less moment still that no one can ever believe this Narrative in the reading more than I have believed it in the writing Instead of looking back therefore I will look forward I cannot close this Volume more agreeably to myself than with a hopeful glance towards the time when I shall again put forth my two green leaves once a month and with a faithful remembrance of the genial sun and showers that have fallen on these leaves of David Copperfield and made me happy London October 1850

PREFACE TO THE CHARLES DICKENS EDITION I REMARKED in the original Preface to this Book that I did not find it easy to get sufficiently far away from it in the first sensations of having finished it to refer to it with the composure which this formal heading would seem to require My interest in it was so recent and strong and my mind was so divided between pleasure and regret pleasure in the achievement of a long design regret in the separation from many companions that I was in danger of wearying the reader with personal confidences and private emotions Besides which all that I could have said of the Story to any purpose I had endeavoured to say in it It would concern the reader little perhaps to know how sorrowfully the pen is laid down at the close of a two years imaginative task or how an Author feels as if he were dismissing some portion of himself into the shadowy world when a crowd of the creatures of his brain are going from him for ever Yet I had nothing else to tell unless indeed I were to confess which might be of less moment still that no one can ever believe this Narrative in the reading more than I believed it in the writing So true are these avowals at the present day that I can now only take the reader into one confidence more Of all my books I like this the best It will be easily believed that I am a fond parent to every child of my fancy and that no one can ever love that family as dearly as I love them But like many fond parents I have in my heart of hearts a favourite child And his name is DAVID COPPERFIELD 1869 David Copperfield Charles Dickens,1910
