Multiple Subject and Single Subject

Step 1: Plan—Part A: Written Narrative: Contextual Information Template

Directions: Provide the information listed below about the context in which you are teaching the content-specific learning segment to the whole class by responding to the following prompts (no more than 4 pages). Type your responses within the brackets following each prompt. Do not delete or alter the prompts.

1. Description of Students' Assets and Learning Needs

a.   prior academic knowledge related to the learning goal(s)
[These students have been working towards the standard. Their previous ELA unit was focused on the standard of CCSS.ELA-Literacy.W.4.2 for writing informative/explanatory texts to examine a topic and convey ideas and information clearly. They have just finished a unit on opinion writing, which has equipped them with the basic writing skills such as proper grammar usage, sentence structure, and organization. This prior academic knowledge will serve as a valuable asset in their upcoming lesson on writing a personal narrative. The students have already learned how to express their opinions and ideas in writing, and they can now apply these skills to write a story that is more personal and reflective of themselves. With this foundation, they will be able to write narratives that are well-organized, engaging, and effective in communicating their experiences and perspectives. I am confident that this class will be able to successfully meet the learning goal of writing a personal narrative and build upon their prior knowledge and skills. Understanding the elements of a good writing piece such as a clear introduction, body, and conclusion. Knowledge of using descriptive language and sensory details to bring a scene or experience to life for the reader. Familiarity with using first person point of view, as both opinion writing and personal narrative writing often use this perspective. Understanding the importance of showing, not telling, in writing, and being able to effectively use figurative language to create vivid images in the reader's mind. Practice with organizing and structuring a writing piece, including the use of transitions to move smoothly between scenes or events.]

b.   English language proficiency levels for English learners
[This class has 2 students who are identified as English Learners. Both of these students have taken the ELPAC (English Language Proficiency Assessment for California) and have not been re-designated as English proficient. One student has an ELPAC score of 4, and the other has an ELPAC score of 3. Considering these two English Learners, it would be best practice to consider scaffolding methods suggested in the UDL (Universal Design for Learning) such as Checkpoint 2.1: clarifying vocabulary would benefit the rest of the class as well as it would the English learners in the class.]

c.   cultural and linguistic resources and funds of knowledge (i.e., knowledge and skills derived from cultural experience) [Funds of knowledge for this class were sourced from initial get-to-know-you surveys, my own observations, cumulative files, as well as conversations with adults around campus such as previous teachers and support staff, specialists, and counselors. This is a fourth-grade class in a public school. In a class of 18 students, 8 are male and 10 are female. There are 7 Caucasian
