understanding and development of emergent therapeutic approaches such as cognitive bias modification and behavioural approach or avoidance training A key question is the feasibility of reversing or modifying maladaptive patterns of reward processing to therapeutic ends Refine and augment the evidential database for tried and tested therapies such as Contingency Management and Behavioral Activation by focusing on core cognitive processes mediating rewards Provide a potential dimensional approach for reward processing deficits that can be of trans diagnostic importance in clinically relevant disorders including depression and addiction Investigate the subjective experience of pleasure the hedonic aspect of reward seeking and consumption and how this can be distinguished from the motivational sometimes compulsive component of reward pursuit This promises more nuanced and effective interventions Depression for instance could be seen as the restricted pursuit of pleasure rather than blunted pleasure experience addiction can be viewed as accentuated drug seeking despite diminished consummatory pleasure This aims to place motivation centre stage in both scenarios emphasising the transdiagnostic theme of the Topic Temporal discounting of future rewards whereby smaller more immediate rewards are chosen even when significantly more valuable deferred rewards are available is another trans diagnostic phenomenon of interest in the in the present context Factors that influence this such as discounting of future reward are thought to reflect compulsion in the addictive context and hopelessness on the part of people experiencing depression The executive cognitive processes that regulate this decision making are of both scientific and clinical significance Empirical findings theoretical contributions or commentaries bearing on cognitive or executive control were therefore welcome
