

DANGEROUS DOOM ENVIRONMENT

Some parts of the DOOM environment can be more dangerous than the monsters you'll face. Areas containing exploding barrels, radioactive waste, or crushing ceilings should be approached with caution.

EXPLODING BARRELS: Scattered around the base are drums containing fuel, toxic waste, or some other volatile substance. If your shots hit one of these barrels, it's kaboomy time! It might take several bullets to set off a barrel, but a single blast of any of the other weapons usually does the trick.

SLIME AND OTHER RADIOACTIVE WASTE: Many of the areas in DOOM contain pools of dangerous liquids that will damage you if you walk through them. There are several varieties of waste, each doing an increasing amount of damage. If it looks fluid, beware!

CRUSHING CEILINGS: Some of the ceilings in DOOM can smash you, making you cry blood. Often you'll be able to see the ceiling moving before you go under it, but not always. Be careful and Save often!

TIP: Barrels can often be the most devastating weapon in your arsenal—delivering a body-blasting explosion to all nearby purgatory pedestrians. Wait until several evil guys get next to a barrel and blast away at the can, then watch 'em all go boom!

HEALTH AND ARMOR

Even for a tough hombre like you, DOOM can be a deadly place. Whenever you are injured, the screen will flash red, and your health will decrease. Keep an eye on your health or you'll end up face down.

HEALING: When you're hurt, you'll want to get healed back up as soon as possible. Fortunately, Medkits and Stimpacks are frequently scattered around the base. Grab them if possible.

Stimpacks give you a quick injection of booster enzymes that make you feel like a new man—at least, to a degree.

Medkits are even better, and include bandages, antiseptics, and other medical supplies to make you feel a lot healthier.

ARMOR: Two types of body armor can be found laying around. Both reduce damage done to you. Unfortunately, both deteriorate with use, and eventually are destroyed by enemy attacks, leaving you in need of replacement armor.

Security armor is a light-weight kevlar vest that's perfect for riot control.

Combat armor is a heavy-duty jacket composed of a titanium derivative—useful for protection against real fire-power, like the kind you're gonna face.

If you're wearing armor, you only pick up a replacement suit if it provides more protection than what you're now wearing.

POWER-UPS

Other bits of "challenging electronics" may be found in DOOM. Most of these are pretty doggone handy, so grab them when able. These special items have a duration of either the entire level, a specific amount of time, or just provide an instant benefit. A few of them affect your game screen so you can tell when they are active. For example, when you pick up a radiation suit, the game screen turns green. As the suit deteriorates the screen will flash. This is a hint to get out of the radioactive ooze now!

Radiation Suits provide protection against radioactivity, heat, and other low-intensity forms of energy. Basically, these suits enable you to wade through the radioactive ooze without taking damage. While a suit holds out, your screen will have a greenish tint.

Duration: Time Based

Berserk Packs heal you, plus act as a super-adrenaline rush, enormously boosting your muscle power. Since you're already a pretty meaty guy, this enhanced strength lets you tear ordinary dots limb from limb, and you can even splatter those demons without too much trouble. However, you've got to use your Fist attack to get the benefit of the Berserk attack bonus. When you become Berserk, your screen will briefly turn red.

Duration: One Level
